SENT OUT AN S. O. S. SIGNAL

Undersea Craft Approached Nearer and Nearer

WITH CONTINUOUS FIRE

Fifty Shots at Least, Were Fired Before the Ancona Stopped—Lifeboats Shot to Pieces and Wireless Telegraphy Instruments Demolished—Graphic Story of Boat's Destruction.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Paris, Nov. 13.—A connected story of the shelling and torpedoing of the Italian liner Ancona was received by the Havas News Agency tonight from Ferryville, where it was filed on November 11. It follows:

"The Ancona left Messina at 8 a.m., Nov. 6. About 10:30 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 7, she picked up a wireless distress signal from the steamship France reading: 'S. O. S. We are being shelled.'

"The message ended abruptly without the position of the France being given so that it was impossible for the Ancona to go to her aid. The Ancona continued on her route an hour afterwards, the sea being calm, and the weather misty.

"Without any sort of warning, the report of a gun was heard and shells simultaneously struck the Ancona forward, causing considerable damage.

"The wireless operator without an instant's delay sent out distress signals with the name of the ship and her position.

"The submarine approached nearer the Ancona, keeping up a continuous fire. First the wireless telegraphy apparatus was demolished and then the lifeboats were shot to pieces, a number of passengers being killed or wounded.

"Fifty shots at least were fired until the Ancona stopped.

"The submarine then hoisted the Austrian colors and her commander announced that he would allow ten minutes for all to quit the ship. The unsmashed boats at once were lowered and after the wounded had been placed in them, the passengers and crew followed. This was going on for half an hour, when the submarine fired a torpedo which struck the Ancona on the bow. The ship sank gradually and disappeared beneath the waves at 2:30 p.m. The submarine then steamed away.

"Twenty six in the evening the mine layer Pluton, which had picked up the Ancona's distress message, arrived on the scene. Most of the survivors thus were rescued close to the place where the steamer sank."

Ancona Was Riddled With Bullets From the Submarine Before Finally Torpedoed

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Paris, Nov. 13.—Passengers aboard the Italian liner Ancona were compelled to seek safety in the boats while the steamer was subjected to cannonade from an Austrian submarine, according to a graphic story of the sea tragedy told by Dr. Cecile L. Grell, of New York, to the Havas correspondent at Ferryville. The American woman escaped only through her ability as a gymnast. She tried vainly to find a place in two boats but there was no room for her. She saved herself by dropping from the deck into a launch which already was in the sea. Her maid was killed in their cabin by a gunshot.

Dr. Grell's story indicates that the torpedo which sent the Ancona to the bottom was not fired until the steamer had been riddled by shots from the guns of the submarine.

"I was in the dining room of the first class passengers," Dr. Grell is quoted as saying, "chatting with some of the voyagers when we heard the report of a cannon. There was great excitement on the deck and

Lieut. Homer M. Groninger.

London, Nov. 13.—No figure in British politics has been the target of more criticism since the war started than Winston Spencer Churchill who has just resigned from the post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the British Isles and is now about to join the army in France.

Mr. Churchill assumed the least important position in the cabinet, that of the chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster, when the coalition cabinet was formed last May, after having held the important post of first lord of the admiralty. Incidentally, Mr. Churchill's change of office did not reduce the flood of criticism which starts as a rule from public statements which older men call at least, indiscreet. He will be 41 years old November 30. According to his critics he had not acquired discretion with years. Rightly or wrongly, Churchill has been blamed as if solely responsible for the inadequacy of the British relief of Antwerp, a military movement that brought little relief to the Belgians and ended with the internment of a large part of the British marine expedition in Holland. Similarly he has had the brunt of the public censure for the attempt to force the Dardanelles without the help of the army, a failure which up to date has produced a British casualty list of approximately 100,000 men.

It is logically unreasonable to place upon his young shoulders the complete responsibility for both of these undertakings which could not have been made without the approval of his older cabinet associates, but public criticism is least of all things logical and he is termed with unrelenting cynicism "the duke of Antwerp and Gallipoli."

Possibly he would not thus be forced to bear the full brunt of this disapproval if he were not addicted to a rather boastful or over-confident method of public address. His prophecy early in the war that if the German ships did not come out and fight, "we would dig them out of their hole like rats"; his prediction that if Zeppelins came to England they would be surrounded by "a swarm of hornets," and his claim at Dundee where he went to speak before his constituency after his clash with Admiral Fisher, that the British on the Gallipoli peninsula were "within a few miles of a great victory" are typical instances of this form of oratory.

The Serbs have retaken the offensive in the Supagora district and are reported to have defeated the Bulgarians at Katchanik Pass, inflicting such heavy losses that the invaders were demoralized. Two French cavalry raids are said to have cleared the ground between Krivolak and Velenje.

British and French re-inforcements are arriving at Saloniki in forces and are being sent immediately into Serbia.

Safely is a business requiring experience and facilities, quite the same as the making of automobiles.

No man thinks of trying to build his own automobile or even his own shoes or his own hat, yet a great many people risk the first money they accumulate in an investment of their own selection.

Millions are lost in this way every year.

For thirty-five years we have been investing money for the savers of this part of Ohio. Nor has he ever had to wait a day to get his money back when he wanted it.

SILENCE ON SINKING OF THE ANCONA.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Berlin, Nov. 13.—(Via London.)—There still is an absolute absence of news from Austrian or German sources regarding the sinking of the Ancona. Nothing has been printed here except dispatches from foreign sources. The German admiralty asserts it has no information regarding the case and has received none from the Austrian admiralty. An American businessman who arrived here yesterday morning from Vienna said that up to the time he left the Austrian capital, Thursday night, the newspapers there had published nothing about the Ancona.

He did not learn until his arrival here that the vessel had been sunk

PROGRESS AT SEVERAL POINTS BY ITALIAN TROOPS IS REPORTED.

Bold Raids by Detachments Result in Capturing Important Railroad Bridge.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Rome, Nov. 12, via Paris, Nov. 13.—Further progress at several points by the Italian troops is reported in an official statement issued today at the headquarters of the general staff. The communication follows:

"Bold raids by our detachments are reported at the confluence of the Camerl and the Adige where we destroyed the railroad bridge between Mori and Seghe, in the upper Calamento valley, at the Bremo and Cismoni torrents.

"On the middle Isonzo we were heavily engaged yesterday in the Plava zone and on the heights northwest of Gorizia, on Montecel Varia, the most southern of these heights, the enemy's attacks which reached to within a few yards of our trenches were repulsed by a murderous fire.

"Our troops then delivered counter attacks, and pressing the flying enemy, stormed the trenches, taking 70 prisoners, four of whom were officers, the sole survivors of a company annihilated by our fire.

"Some hours afterward we encountered a heavy laden boat which was leaking. We took aboard five women and four children in order to lighten it. Lemberti then took it in tow, not permitting more passengers to crowd into our boat.

"Lemberti did his best to reassure the unfortunate under his charge, most of whom were in tears, telling them all would be well if they heeded his advice. His energetic attitude prevented a panic and finally brought about order. I did all I could to encourage the women and children who continued their cries of grief.

"When the sun disappeared we saw a black spot on the horizon, and all the survivors became greatly excited. It wasn't another submarine but the steamer Pluton, which had seen our distress signals and rescued us about 7 o'clock in the evening. Later it headed for Bizerta after having circled the vicinity of the spot where the Ancona was torpedoed and rescued other survivors who were in boats. The Pluton's captain placed the crew at the disposal of the survivors to aid those who were suffering. I did everything possible in the way of first aid to the wounded whom we were bringing back on the Ancona. All those wounded men, except those saved by the Pluton, remained aboard the Ancona and went down with her.

"We arrived at Bizerta about 11 o'clock but remained aboard the Pluton, the officers placing their cabins at our disposal. At eight o'clock the next morning, we reached the arsenal at Sidi-Ab-Dallas, where a temporary hospital was erected for us. Here we were able to rest. I will continue to give my services to the survivors and aid the physicians.

Dr. Greil was on her way to her home in New York. She had been visiting the Russian consul and his family at Bari, Italy.

To Union Soldiers, Sailors and Marines:

The Division Commander of the Ohio Division of the Sons of Veterans has designated Friday evening, November 19, 1915, as Veterans Night, in honor of the Union soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the War of the Rebellion, and urged upon the Sons of Veterans camp to arrange a public meeting with appropriate program, the surviving soldiers to be guests of honor.

In compliance with this order, Inscho Camp, No. 250, of Newark, will hold a public meeting at the G. A. R. hall Friday night, November 19, which date is the fifty-second anniversary of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, the program to consist of the reading of the address, two short addresses and some attractive music.

Music

Miss Elsa Hirschberg Lyon of Newark sang in Topeka, Kansas, last Tuesday night and that she pleased and thrilled the audience as she has many a time in her home city, can be judged from the following notice from the Topeka Daily Capital:

The lights were turned low. Some thought it was for the removal of hats without annoyance of public gaze while disheveled hair was spirited to its proper place. In the darkness, the accompanist took her place at the piano. The audience waited in abated silence. Then—from behind the scenes, the round, full notes of the singer floated through the blackness. Lights were turned on and the singer revealed. In those few moments she had gained the confidence of her audience. Through the remainder of the program, the first impression was strongly fortified.

The singer was Elsa Hirschberg Lyon. Miss Lyon surpassed advance notices of her ability. The concert took place last night at the First Baptist church under the direction of Miss Jennie Blinn, who played all the piano accompaniments. A fair sized audience greeted the singer. Those who love music and failed to attend the concert missed a musical treat.

Seldom is Topeka visited by a grand opera singer, who fulfills her mission. No notes of disappointment were sounded after the concert last night. Regrets were limited to the fact that more persons were not present.

Miss Lyon opened the evening with "The Warning Cry of Brangane," by Wagner. It, perhaps, was her heaviest number. She sang with tremendous volume. A note of sympathetic appeal stirred her hearers. Groups of German and English songs followed. All were marked with a dramatic touch and sweetness. As an encore to the first group she sang "Calm as the Night." Miss Lyon received her early instruction in vocal music from Miss Blinn, when both lived in Newark, Ohio. The encore number was studied under the direction of Miss Blinn. It pleased the audience.

One number was sung with Mrs. Arza Clark at the pipe organ. The song was "He Was Despised," taken from Handel's "Messiah." The closing number was "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint Saens.

Miss Lyon will remain in Topeka with Miss Blinn for another week.

When the L. S. Marine Band appears in the high school auditorium on Wednesday, November 17, the program which Director Wm. H. Santelmann will offer will be a most unusual one from the standpoint of countries represented by the composers. Director Santelmann has called it a "neutral program," and it assuredly deserves the name, for all of the major powers, except Japan, now at war, are represented among the composers, as well as the United States.

Thomas' overture "Mignon" stands for France; Rubinstein's "Candide Dance of the Bride of Kaschmir," from ballet "Feramores," is typical of the best of Russian music; Austria is represented on the list by Johann Strauss' waltz, "On the Beautiful Blue Danube"; "The Jewels of the Madonna," by Wolf-Ferrari, represents the Italian school; Wagner's "Entrance of the Gods into Walhalla," from "The Rhinegold," is the German number; Hungary's contribution is Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2; Sir Edward William Elgar's scene espagnole, "Sevillana," represents England; and Arthur Tregenna's grand march, "The President," is the American number.

Of course, the "Star Spangled Banner" will be played also, as this is always the closing number for the official band of the United States government.

In addition to these concerted numbers there will be two striking solos, one, Heinrich Hoff's grand fantasia, "The Pearl of the Ocean," by Arthur Witcomb, cornetist, and the other William Popp's fantasia brillante, "Oh, Happy Time, Oh, Blessed Time," by Robert Seel, flutist.

The Sherwood Music Club held its first meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 11, at Mrs. Roe's studio, 32 Fulton avenue. Three piano numbers were rendered by the following Sherwood pupils: Misses Mildred Close, Grace Berry and Emma Armstrong. Mrs. Cochran gave an interesting talk on music manners. Question box was conducted by Miss Francis Powell. Short talk by Mrs. Cannott, the secretary of the Newark branch of Sherwood music school, which explained the guessing contest. This was the impersonating of the characters that surrounded Schumann's life: Robert Northy as Schumann; Mrs. Cochran as Clara Schumann; Mrs. Roe as Schumann's mother, Harold Umstott as Master Wieck.

GAMES IN WEST TODAY COMMAND INTEREST OF FANS

ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Contests between Chicago and Minnesota at Minneapolis and Wisconsin and Illinois at Champaign, the results of which will have an important bearing on the "Big Nine" football championship command the interest of western gridiron followers today.

Chicago faces a weight disadvantage in meeting Minnesota, but Coach Stagg will depend on the speed of his backfield players, and their ability to execute intricate plays evolved for the contest to bring about victory. Chicago has three sets of backfield men ready for the game and, although all of the players are light, they are consistent ground-gainers.

Minnesota, it is reported, will be unable to present its full offensive strength as Captain Bierman has not fully recovered from injuries sustained in the Iowa game. He is regarded as one of the best line pluggers on the eleven.

Wisconsin is prepared to put up a hard fight against Illinois in order to remain a factor in the championship race.

Northwestern goes into action against Indiana, at Evanston, in a game to determine which team shall finish last in the western conference race.

The game between Kansas and Nebraska at Lawrence, Kans., is expected to decide the championship of the Missouri Valley.

RUPP UNABLE TO PLAY GAME AGAINST AKRON

Granville, Nov. 13.—Akron's eleven will try to burn up Denison's hopes of victory here today for the first time. As this will be the home-coming game, a couple of hundred alumni likely will witness the opening of the athletic relations between the two colleges.

Right Half Rupp likely will not play at all. Coach Livingston said yesterday that Rupp is bothered with bad headache. It is so severe, indeed, that Rupp is wearing colored glasses to ease his nerves. He has been out of practice sessions for the past two nights.

Lang or Swanson will likely play in Rupp's place with Lang having the better chance. Center Starkard of Toledo will get into regular action. He has recovered from the injuries received at Cleveland in the Reserve game.

LAST TIME OUT FOR 5 STATE MEN IN OBERLIN GAME

ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM

Columbus, Nov. 13.—With Oberlin as an opponent, Ohio State will play its last football game of the season on Ohio field today. Unless the visitors show unexpected strength, Coach Wilce will give a number of second-string men an opportunity to appear in the lineup.

Five of Ohio State's players will take part in their last game of college football in the game today. They are Captain Boughton, Ginn, Hobt, Knoll and Yassenoff. Bough- ton and Hobt have both been regulars for three years. Coach Wilce was still undecided before the game as to what players he would use. Several of his men are badly bruised up and will be unable to play.

Oberlin is reported to be in good shape for the contest and with the addition of Forbush and Dunn to the offensive strength, should put up a real battle.

Some men seem to think they are above reproach just because they happen to be stilted.

SHEET ASPHALT FOR HUDSON AVE. VOTED AT MEET

In a meeting which warmed up nicely at times, Hudson avenue property owners last night voted to request the city board of control to let the contract to one of the bidders for sheet asphalt for the resurfacing of Hudson avenue. The asphalt will be applied on the surface of the present brick pavement.

This decision was reached after property owners had heard arguments from nine material men who were given the privilege of addressing the meeting. The merits of the various kinds of paving material were presented by these manufacturers and contractors. The relative merits of Mexican and natural lake asphalt were discussed and in spite of the fact that the opinion was freely expressed that there was little if any difference in the two products, the property owners indicated their preference for Trinidad lake asphalt.

Addressess were made at the meeting by Mr. Klunk of the Barber Asphalt Co., Mr. Upson of the Standard Oil company, recommending Mexican asphalt, Mr. Crowell of the Barrett Manufacturing Co., makers of Tarvia and like materials, Mr. Brower of the Federal Asphalt Paving company, Mr. Brehm of the Biltithic Paving company, Mr. Patterson, engineer for the Cleveland Trinidad Paving company, Mr. McDonald of the National Paving Brick Manufacturer's association, Mr. Brindle, engineer for the brick makers and Mr. Allison of the Ohio Brick Makers' association.

Service Director Christian and Engineer Wells also spoke at the request of several of the property owners.

Among the property owners who spoke at the meeting were W. C. Miller, Frank Schimpf, J. F. Irwin, W. H. Mazey, W. H. Davis, E. T. Johnson, W. F. Upson and Archie Davis.

Councilman H. L. Rexroth called the meeting to order and asked C. W. Miller to preside as chairman. It was voted to allow each material man eight minutes to present his case.

At the conclusion of the statement and discussion of materials and figures, W. H. Mazey moved that the board of control be advised that it was the sentiment of the property owners to award the contract for Trinidad sheet asphalt. An amendment was offered to place the matter in the hands of the board of control with the request that the board use its own judgment in selecting material. This amendment was defeated and the original motion instructing the board to specify the Trinidad product, was carried, though not without opposition.

Mayor R. C. Bigbee and Service Director Christian, who, with Safety Director C. F. Dayton constitute the board of control, were present at the meeting.

YALE-PRINCETON GAME IS GREAT EVENT IN EAST

ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM

New York, Nov. 13.—The Yale-Princeton contest at New Haven today claims chief interest among the day's gridiron battles in the east. Princeton goes on the field a strong favorite over the Blue because of the numerous defeats Yale has suffered this season but the experts figure that there is a chance that Yale's new coaches will uncover unexpected ability.

Michigan plays its last game of the season with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia today and a close struggle is expected. Cornell expects Washington and Lee to put up a hard fight in the battle at Ithaca. Colgate and Syracuse, whose victories over teams usually of higher standing has placed them in the front ranks this year, play at Syracuse. A close score is looked for in the Harvard-Brown game at Cambridge as few of the Crimson regulars will be in the lineup.

AMERICA'S THANKS.

We thank him who has made and preserved us a nation. Who did this continent from the eyes of the world until the time for its revolution had come? Who summoned his faithful men, believing in God and in men as the children of God.

Who preserved the brave colonists from famine, pestilence and sword; from internal dissensions and from foreign foes.

Who united the hearts and minds of the various peoples in their demand for liberty and their declaration of independence.

Who, in the wise counsels of their counsels, gave the strength of their defenders to give victory to the weak battalions.

Who pacified the strifes and vanquished the jealousies which separated the several states and joined them in one indissoluble union.

Who suffered not the evils of slavery to end in the nation's death, but raised up prophets of liberty to awaken the consciences of the people.

Who has brought to our shores the oppressed of other lands and made it a refuge, a school, a home for the needy and the aspiring of all nations.

Who has given us wisdom in the past to provide a free school and free churches for a free people.

Who inspires in our own day clear sighted, brave hearted men to bathe without truce or retreat against open violence and insidious corruption, against the perils of popular ignorance and the perils of concentrated wealth.

Who inspires other clear sighted, brave hearted men to toll in peaceful vocations without stint for public education and public virtue.

Who gives to us an open Bible, a living church and a common faith in a righteous and a redeeming God.

Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and his wonderful works to the children of men!—Outlook.

Delaware, Nov. 13.—Delaware High lost its final game of the season on the home grounds here yesterday afternoon to Newark by the score of 19 to 13. ## State Fair Deficit.

Rural newspapers of Ohio have been given scant satisfaction by the new State Board of Agriculture.

They have not been paid for the advertising of the recent state fair. Maybe they never will be. Complaint to Secretary Dunlap has not even brought the courtesy of a reply—he's too busy in political maneuvering to save his job and put John Begg at the head of the State Grange. Appeal to President Begg has elicited the reply that the matter of payment to newspapers is out of the board's hands and up to the emergency board. Mr. Begg's explanation is actual admission that the state fair through mismanagement went broke.

For the benefit of those patient newspaper men who earned the money they now want, it may be said that when Dunlap sent out the oodles of plate—some $94 pages of it—it was personal boosting and he expected it to be run free. But when an ever watchful news bureau exposed the cash deal that had been made with billboards, Dunlap got a few hob-nailed booteel and iron clad toes against the shins and he had a vision. Then Dunlap was deposed. To make good with himself at the expense of the newspapers, Dunlap, then without authority, told the newspapers to print his stuff at "customary rates," and the newspapers in good faith went ahead. Dunlap knew he had no right but the newspapers did not know he was intentionally trying to make them goats. But the state emergency board has been seeking the facts and wants some straight explanations from Dunlap before making up a deficit.

Dunlap saw to it that the political employees of the fair were paid, he saw that the passes were distributed, but the newspapers that he fooled, they might wait. They are still waiting. They are not going to forget Dunlap and his board and even now they want to know why Dunlap could not produce his letter-book when he was requested to do so at a recent board meeting.

Working the Double Cross.

Following the little fix-up party held by Theodore F. Burton and Frank B. Willis, with Harry Daugherty on the sidelines, there have been some interesting developments.

It appears that in addition to some of the state officials in Columbus, all others who met there to lay out the Republican plans for the next four years came by invitation and invitations were limited. So much for the fellows who were not asked.

There was a studied affront to Edwin Jones, chairman of the Republican state executive committee, who, it seems, has been getting many bricks and but few bouquets from those who have appointed themselves leaders.

In addition to these matters for consideration it was noted that the jubilation was that of the old stand-pat crowd. Invitations were not extended to Progressives or to those of known progressive bent.

And Messrs. Burton and Willis exchanged felicitations only after the Willis threat had soaked in—wherefore each met the other with a long sharp dirk concealed in his handiest boot top.

Now Daugherty says he's satisfied, so does Willis, so does Burton, so does Herrick. Jones says his best friends want him to run for United States senator, and his other friends want him to run for governor. Herrick has his dress suit on ready to be called to lead the parade after some one else has lost his scalp in the

When he resigned his post at France, to use his own words, had been converted into a factory and their production of projectiles and explosives was six times what was thought would be sufficient at the beginning of the war. Millerand mobilized the whole industry of the country for the purposes of conflict. While other nations were hurrying men to the front, and taking them from the munitions factories, he kept at work those already in the factories, and hurried more there. He recruited them as others were recruited for the field.

"The needs of the army increase constantly, and each day something new is demanded," says the former war minister, "but our vigilance never sleeps, and each day when something new is demanded of us that new thing is furnished. It would be criminal to be satisfied with what has already been accomplished. Always more; always better; that must be our rule."

The vigilance that never sleeps, and the rule that there must be always more and better effort, applies as well to the country guarding against war as to the one engaged in it.

President and Prophet.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Men and brethren, is there any reason why a Democrat in good and regular standing should not quote the Bible directly? May he not search the Scriptures as diligently as another? Have the Republicans and the Populists any monopoly of the Bible? Mr. Wilson lived for many years in Princeton, where there is a theological school, and he could hardly have failed to absorb some passages from the Word of God.

Mr. Wilson justified himself for arousing the people to a sense of the need of increased defense by a citation from Ezekiel referring to the watchman who sees the danger coming and fails to sound the alarm—the tocsin, we have frequently heard orators call it. Thereupon some of our esteemed contemporaries shout that he is encroaching upon the domain of Mr. Bryan, and more of them cry aloud that he is plagiarizing from Theodore Roosevelt, who has used the identical passage from the prophet.

Well, suppose he has? May not Mr. Wilson quote Scripture as well as Mr. Bryan? And if Mr. Roosevelt cites a passage does he acquire a copyright on it? An English clergyman once began a sermon by saying: "As his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury said in Westminster Abbey last Tuesday, 'God is love!'" There are persons who think the clergyman might safely have gone back of the Primate and credited the declaration to the source from which he derived his information. If Mr. Wilson said:

As Mr. Roosevelt observed on one occasion: "Son of man, speak to the children of thy people and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon the land; if the people of the land take a man of their coasts and set him for their watchman," etc., etc., what would these critics have said of him? Would they not have made haste to say that he had better read his Bible and get his quotations from the original source instead of from the Oyster Bay version? Certainly they would, and the President was entirely correct in quoting from the original text, even though the inclusion of Mr. Roosevelt's name might have added somewhat to the impressiveness of the passage.

A German paper remarked that there was "a good old German proverb, 'Pride goeth before destruction'." At once a number of newspapers learned in Holy Writ announced that Solomon said that. They were right enough; there were a few good things before Germany, and among them is the Book of Proverbs. If the President had given to Mr. Roosevelt the credit for the passage which that redoubtable person found in Ezekiel these Biblical students would have made merry with him, just as they did with the German paper. The President had a perfect right to quote Scripture, without asking permission of Mr. Bryan, or giving credit to Mr. Roosevelt.

A Little Tragedy.

I jaunted in my motor car, and ran o'er Jimson's shot, and from that creature knocked the tar; I surely got a goat. I offered payment for the pig—'twas neither large nor fat—but Jimson made the price too high; I wouldn't stand for that. "The rankest graft I ever saw," I cried with rising ire; "before I'll pay I'll go to law—a lawyer I shall hire." We went to law; the case was tried by judges near and far; and now I see the lawyer ride in my nice motor car, I trudge along on weary feet, all burdened with disgust; the lawyer scoots along the street, and covers me with dust. Old Jimson had a hundred pigs, that fed on cockleburs; they're gone to purchase gowns and wigs for stately barristers. We stood last night by my abode, to cuss the legal rich; my lawyer motored down the road, and shoved us in the ditch. For such a dark and dismal shame there's nothing can atone, the ear that climbs my paised frame was formerly my own. Oh, Jimson had a hundred hogs, and I a choo-choo cart; and he has nothing now but dogs, and I a broken heart.

Preparedness Costs Less.

The cost of preparedness in times of peace is one-half the cost in times of war. If an attack were made upon the United States, it would cost this government at least one-third more to prepare for resistance than it would if the program of preparedness were carried out now while peace still prevails. Half a billion dollars spent now not only will save infinitely larger expenditures later on, but may actually result in preserving peace for a long time to come. Not Too Busy To Vote.

Woodrow Wilson set an example of patriotic performance of duty when he went from Washington to Princeton to cast his ballot in the New Jersey election. He was not too busy to vote.

He might have remained in the White House looking out of the windows toward the Potomac and gossiping with whatever friends came in. He might have spent the day touring the country in his automobile and refusing to go to the polls and rub elbows with the plain people; and this morning he might have relieved his feelings by calling New Jersey a "bum" state for electing a lot of incompetents to office.

The shirkers and the slackers on election day deserve the same kind of contempt that those are getting in Great Britain who refuse to go to the front to fight for their country. —Philadelphia Ledger.

New York's Municipal Library.

There is one library owned and managed by the city of New York about which there is probably less known outside of the circles of the legal profession and students of municipal affairs than any other library in that town. And this, curiously enough, in spite of the fact that the volumes on its shelves are subpoenaed in court more than the general public knows anything about. This institution is the city library, in the city hall, and it has on its shelves 10,000 volumes. The official reason for this library's being is to furnish a complete and official record of the municipal affairs and history of the city of New York. From the viewpoint of the bibliophile or the historian the most valuable books in the library are the records of the town in the days when the Dutch ruled Manhattan and it was known as New Amsterdam. The old Dutch records consist of seven fat volumes covering the period between 1647 and 1674. —Pittsburgh Dispatch.

"Lyman H. Howe Day" at Panama.

In recognition of the sheer excellence of the film of the Panama-California Exposition made by Lyman H. Howe, the Exposition officials set aside a "Lyman H. Howe Day" which was fittingly observed on July 7th on the wonderful plazas and avenues of the great exposition at San Diego. The honor was conferred on Mr. Howe because the films which will be shown here at the Auditorium theatre on Sunday Nov. 14, matinee and evening, surpassed the expectations of the officials not merely in perfection of photography and "composition" but which is equally important—in giving every spectator such a comprehensive and adequate knowledge of the magical beauty of the exposition.

As part of the ceremonies an address was made by Mr. Howe's representative during which reference was made to still another feature in the following words: "Mr. Howe, interested in the spirit that prompted the creation of the Panama-California Exposition, presents to the Exposition's historian, a moving picture print—the first from the moving picture negatives that have been made during the last few months, showing the Panama Canal in operation."

At the Alhambra Sunday will be "The Goose Girl" with Marguerite Clark in the leading role. The Goose Girl is founded on Harold McGath's famous novel of the same name and is one of the most beautiful and clever pictures ever filmed.

With this purpose in view he arranges with Gypsies to abduct daughter of Grand Duke and keep her hat, coat, locket and sends his own child away. During abduction the little princess is wounded on the shoulder by a bullet. Fifteen years later he tells the Grand Duke that he has found the princess and produces his own child with the locket in proof of identity. Meanwhile the real princess after being abandoned by Gypsies has been adopted by peasants and has grown up as "The Goose Girl."

At this period the young King Frederick is betrothed to princess but has never seen her and puts love above diplomatic necessity. He disguises as Vinter meets the Goose Girl; falls in love. The real identity of the Goose Girl is later revealed by the bullet mark, and she takes her rightful place and everything ends happily.

ONE PIECE FROCKS.

One piece dresses have coats, and long ones, too, that almost cover the dress in like material. One piece dresses have proved so valuable that it will be a difficult proposition to make many women who have adopted the tailored frock coat to wear the waist and skirt again except for sports wear.

So much better dressed should appear that she wears frocks of this description on as many occasions as possible, so that the coat to match has been offered and accepted by the well dressed woman.

Had Throat Trouble Doctors Said Health Gone. Four Bottles Peruna Cured Me

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes, ex-Sheriff of Warren county, Tennessee, in a letter from R. R. 2, Box 10, McMinnville, Tenn., writes: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone, and concluded to try Peruna, and after taking four bottles, I say I was entirely cured. That was three years ago. I am now well and able to ride all the time, thanks to you, gentlemen."

THE WAY TO GOOD HEALTH

By J. D. Montgomery.

Good health is defined to be, "The normal condition of the body" or "The perfect and harmonic operation of all the organs and tissues of the body." It is a condition free from aches, pains, sickness, disease and ill feelings of any kind, with all the faculties in perfect working order.

It is our aim to help those who do not possess the above happy condition to a better state of physical efficiency. Our object in going to the trouble of writing these articles is merely to assist the readers of the Advocate to a more thorough understanding of the needs and the possibilities of what the Bible calls the "Temple of the Holy Ghost," the human body. It will be our effort to tell in simple language how to find health when it is lost and how to keep it when it has been found. We have no ax to grind in this work. It is entirely free from personal aggrandizement or gain. In fact the object may be said to be merely good will to our neighbor whose most serious problem of life is his failing health, whose days are spent in apprehension whose nights pass slowly in restless tossing. We wish to show such how to gain a higher plane of living, and, if possible, teach him how to hold what he has gained.

It is not our intention to belittle these articles to plainly point out some ways and means by which parents may learn to help their own offspring; others may help themselves; all may be a help to each other. We shall endeavor to avoid technical language as far as possible.

It will therefore be our aim in these articles to plainly point out some ways and means by which parents may learn to help their own offspring; others may help themselves; all may be a help to each other. We shall endeavor to avoid technical language as far as possible.

In the corn pit, bullish advices regarding the quality of the crop in Illinois were followed by a general market tendency to make values stronger. Country buying was much broader than has recently been the case. The market after opening unchanged to 7.5c higher scored material additional up.

Profit taking by holders failed to cause any lasting setback. The close was steady as to 7.5c net advance. Gains developed firmly as with corn. Traders, however, was not urged to make provisions more toward influence by the action of hogs and grain. It was also said that export sales were now averaging more than twice the normal amount.

Allied issues were the only features of interest in today's opening, with gains of 1 to 2 points on moderate dealings. Metal stocks shared in the market's general upward trend, but most of the former speculative interest was backward. United States Steel rose a small fraction at the outset but soon fell back. Bethlehem Steel rose, pointed to 445, with further positive use automobile grants. Transactions in Union Pacific and Lehigh Valley showed nominal losses while Reading and Canadian Pacific were fractionally higher.

Today's market was steady, but due to the regular week end settlements of speculative accounts, dealings were light and lacked the impulse of public inquiry. Seasoned shares were again under moderate restraint, but with firms making their case for wide changes, most on the side of higher quotations. Motor stocks rose 2 to 3 points and Bethlehem Steel, Baldwin Locomotive and Chicago Steel rose more moderately. United States Steel showed the fact of realizing sales, but copper held their recent advantage, in some instances scoring higher prices. Railways were a negligible factor throughout. The closing was irregular.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

If two engines of the same make and model were set in the same frame, one ahead of the other, would the rear crank shaft be strong enough to stand the strain?

The rear crankshaft would have to be strong enough to transmit the horsepower of both motors. This would be especially true if the timing was so arranged that the power strokes of the two motors were synchronized so that the minimum stress from both motors fell upon the shaft at the same time. In such a case as you mention a heavy crankshaft should be installed in the rear motor.

My car smokes badly and has used one gallon of oil in 100 miles. It has a splash lubrication system. What is the trouble, and how can I remedy it?

When a splash system smokes the trouble can generally be put down to either too high a level in the splash trough, too deep dipping of the connecting rods or bad piston rings. The first two amount to practically the same thing, because if the level of the oil is too high the connecting rod is sure to dip too deeply into the oil, and hence the effect is to splash too much oil to the cylinders. When the piston rings are faulty the oil leaks past the rings, and after it reaches the combustion space is burned in large quantities, thereby causing the smoking and sootting. The proper course for you to pursue is first to determine the proper level in the crank case.

The trouble with your oiling system might be in the leakage of air in the vacuum tank which controls the supply to the crank case. If air leaks into the cap at the top the oil will flow out of the tank into the crank case, and the result will be such as you mention. Therefore see that the filter cap on top of the reservoir is absolutely airtight. If you will do this and also see that the oil level is not above the plug in the bottom your system will work all right.

Have the different makes of magneto different material for breaker points than platinum, and, if so, what is it? Are there different grades of platinum points?

The so called platinum points for magneto vary greatly in composition and hardness. Different compositions and percentages of iridium are used in the compositions, the average being somewhere about 15 per cent iridium or less. In some of the very cheap grades no platinum at all is used, nickel being substituted. These points do not stand up for any length of time.

Where platinum is used the only difference in actual grade is in the variation of the percentages of alloying substances used and also in the thickness of the points. In some cases the platinum is very thin.

If a can of gasoline is exposed to the air long enough for a noticeable part of it to evaporate will the remaining gasoline be any weaker than it was at first?

When gasoline is exposed to the air and allowed to evaporate the specific gravity of the remainder of the liquid increases, and, while the fuel value remains about the same, it is harder to start a motor with it. Gasoline is a mixture of a great many petroleum oils differing slightly in their specific gravity, and when this mixture is allowed to evaporate slowly a greater proportion of the lighter oils is taken up by the atmosphere, and thus what is left becomes heavier and heavier, and as the specific gravity increases it makes starting harder.

Is there such a thing as a high compression or a low compression motor? If so, what is the advantage of a low compression motor?

Motors have been constructed with compression pressure varying all the way from nothing at all up to several hundred pounds. Roughly, motors with a compression of over seventy pounds are generally considered to have high compression and engines with less than fifty-five pounds low compression. Yet the terms are purely relative and have no exact meaning. A low compression motor will run slower and more smoothly at slow speed than a high compression one. It is not so likely to knock when the cylinders are carbonized, nor will it overheat so readily. The pressures generated are not as great, and therefore the parts do not need to be made so strong. The high compression engine, on the other hand, is more efficient and develops a greater power for a given piston displacement.

My car cannot go up any kind of a grade on high. After getting it all overhauled the same trouble is found. Some people claim the spray nozzle in the carburetor is at fault. What do you think it can be?

The cause of the noise on the carburetor seems to be incorrect, and if you will get into communication with the makers of the carburetor they will no doubt correct it for you. Another possibility is that the spark plug points are spread too far apart and you are not getting good ignition at low speeds. The probabilities are, however, that all the trouble is in the carburetor. The spark plug points should be adjusted, they should be gauged by the thickness of a business card.

Is a cantilever spring as easy riding as any other kind?

Cantilever springs give easy riding owing to their ability to check the rear bound. The elliptic spring as used on many cars gives very easy riding, and it cannot be stated that the cantilever is better than this. Much depends upon the load carried and upon the design of the springs used. The relation between sprung and unsprung weight is a factor for consideration.

THANKSGIVING TEXTS

The Lord has done great things, whereof we are glad.—Psalm cxxvi, 3.

Yea, the Lord shall give that which is good, and our land shall yield her increase.—Psalm lxxv, 12.

Where the Turkeys Come From

THE great bulk of the turkey crop of general consumption on the Atlantic seaboard is produced in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan and Iowa. The adjacent states of Missouri, Kansas, Tennessee, Arkansas and Minnesota also contribute shares, but to a smaller extent. This supply is termed "western," a portion of which is "dry picked," while the remainder is sealed to enable the ready removal of the feathers. The latter presents the better appearance before cooking, but the former is plumped up and becomes attractively smooth and of unbroken skin surface under the influence of the heat needed in its preparation for the table. All choice or fancy turkeys and other poultry are dressed "dry picked."

There are several sources of production of ultra superior turkeys, for each of which it is claimed that it holds the palm of excellence. As the reputation for luxurious living in this country began in the south, it will be well to commence with a description of the rice fattened birds of Maryland. They are distinguished for delicacy of flesh and flavor which are imparted by their exclusively rice diet, and their skin is remarkably white, as compared with that of other poultry, which is also attributed to the character of feeding.

There are certain epicures who will partake of no other turkeys while "Maryland rice feds" are procurable. The next in order is what is designated as "Philadelphia," and this embraces turkeys, chickens, fowls, geese and ducks. Pennsylvania has been occupied by a thrifty class of German immigrants, who early provided good poultry, especially in Bucks county of that state, which furnished the supply of the citizens of Philadelphia.

Visitors to that city, attracted by the excellent poultry with which they were served, substituted for "Bucks county" "Philadelphia," and so it has become the term for all varieties of Pennsylvania poultry sent out of the state.

Northward progression of the description of famous poultry next halts at Rhode Island. There the poulterers have selected the largest of the cultivated strains, which attain the weight of twenty-five to thirty pounds the first year and fifty pounds and upward the second year. Massachusetts has its claim to the production of high class poultry also on file, and to turkey it adds geese, of which in New York, where all qualities and standards are passed upon and determined, the excellence is conceded.

Large size, tenderness of flesh, palatability of flavor, are all included, and, though Rhode Island, Philadelphia and Maryland each and all insist that their geese cannot be excelled, the city epicures decide for Boston's claim by their insistence for that supply to the limit of its extent.

It was a beautiful and appropriate custom in the old Puritan churches to endeavor to reconcile upon Thanksgiving day any disputes which might have occurred among the members. Although it is possible that little if any trace of this excellent custom is found in most churches today, it lives in the reunion of families.

The Night After Thanksgiving.

Twas the night of Thanksgiving, when all through the flat Not a creature was stirring, not even the cat.

Johnnies lay sleeping upon his small cot—

He might have been dreamless, but then he was not.

He saw in his vision a table piled high With sauces and dressing and pudding and pie.

And there in the center, upon a long plate,

He saw himself lying in elegant state.

He was browned to a turn and was stuffed for a king.

With his legs in the air, while each arm was a wing,

And he tried to turn over and dash from the place,

But he couldn't move muscle, much less win a race.

And a dozen big gobblers sat there in a ring,

And they pecked at his legs and they dug at his wing;

He tried to call "father" and "mother," but vain,

While they still kept their pecking and causing him pain.

At last, with an effort, he made a big slash,

And off from the table he went with a crash,

And when he awakened his parents both said,

"Good Lord, John Augustus, can't you stay in your bed?"

at the Panama-Pacific Exposition

The Y. W. C. A. building at the exposition was erected at a cost of $43,000. Five thousand visitors use it daily. Girls come to it for employment, recreation, advice and protection. Salaries exclusive of the lunch room employees, cost $25,000.

The work that is actually being done in this building from day to day is a living exhibit of Y. W. C. A. activities.

FACTS for Six Months.

586 secured room through our list of investigated places.

318 girls placed in positions

19,330 women used couches in rest room. Many emergencies met, such as securing legal aid, railroad transportation, medical and hospital care and friendly advice and interest.

$594.30 drawn from emergency fund for pressing cases.

90 social occasions. Luncheons, teas and parties for girls employed on the grounds. Dinners to members of conferences and conventions in session in city. Evening classes in stenography, typewriting and store salesmanship are open to women employed at the exposition who wish to be better prepared for a job when the fair closes.

11,458 attended the five o'clock Sunday vespers 49 states and 13 foreign countries represented on the register at the information desk.

3,731 meals served in cafeteria, daily average.

How did all this come about? In response to a request from the management of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, the national board of the Y. W. C. A. sent out a worker from its headquarters in New York in the fall of 1912. A local committee was formed; the needs of women at previous expositions were studied; plans made and altered as circumstances developed, and a staff of workers was on the ground before the exposition was open to the public; young women were secured who had large experience in many lines of social and religious service.

What are you doing with all the money you make?

Reimbursing the national board for the initial cost of building, $43,000; erecting and equipping the Zone Club House; furnishing the free printed matter, and moving pictures; financing the non-revenue producing departments, some of them in operation long before the fair opened, and those like the Day Nursery, undertaken upon demand, but in the nature of the case, not self-supporting; entertaining guests at supper and social conferences.

What do you think the result will be?

The official plaque or bronze medal presented by the exposition authorities on May 18th, was the a saddle. Many of the associations members whom they represented now glean the ripened harvest with unaccustomed hands. In the stillness of the twilight hour with no shock of battle, no call of trumpet, no clanking of arms, with not even the countenance of their dead, they cry out to God for peace in an hour when there is no peace. They pray God's blessing on the arms that fight for their Fatherland and start at every word from the front to learn the fate of their own beloved.

All our racial affiliations call us to sympathize with our European and Asiatic associations. What time in all earth's history is a greater challenge to faith than now. There are those who say that the "message of Christianity has failed," but upon what message save that of the Prince of Peace dare we now depend.

Cast Bread On the Waters.

By BREEN.

Money spent on advertising frequently returns a hundredfold. It is the business man's best bet. Don't force your ad, though. If you have something good tell the public. Tell it forcefully. Tell it concisely. Tell it truthfully.

But you must tell it. None will deny that the best way to tell it is through the medium of a newspaper. Newspaper advertising is reasonable. It is fruitful. It gets immediate results. If the article is as represented it means big sales.

Judicious advertising has been the foundation of many a fortune.
